THE TRAILS AT TALKING ROCK

Camp Trail — .92 Miles
This easy level trail leads you to where the old Ranchers sometimes camped with the cattle. You can choose to begin this trail just off of Centennial Drive or make it part of your hike along Old Valley Trail. Either way, you will find yourself walking along a grove of trees and soaking up views.

Cooper Morgan Trail — 1.15 miles
The longest trail begins just north of the main entrance and follows Williamson Valley Road. By passing over Cooper Morgan Road, winding through beautiful fields, and ending in a connection to the Homestead Trail, this trail is the perfect way to get immersed in the scenery of Talking Rock.

Valley View Trail — .11 Miles
This trail is a short, yet challenging climb to the top where a bench awaits you. The reward for this moderate to strenuous hike is a quiet place with views that you can see for miles.

East Perimeter Trail — 1.11 Miles
This easy level trail borders the east perimeter of Talking Rock. The trail can be accessed via the Crossover Trail or Valley View Trail. At times this trail offers spectacular views of Williamson Valley. This is the perfect trail for watching Arizona's famously breathtaking sunsets.

Inscription Canyon Trail — 1.11 Miles
Take a direct path to Inscription Canyon by following this trail. Inscription Canyon offers up-close views of ancient petroglyphs, and is the site that gave Talking Rock its name!

Homestead Trail — .43 Miles
The Homestead Trail offers a brief but enjoyable walk with lovely views on either side of the path.

Silent Moon Trail — .5 Miles
This pleasant trail connects the Ranch Compound to Silent Moon Park, Talking Rock's newest putting course.

Old Valley Trail — .27 Miles
The Old Valley Trail begins at the guardhouse but follows the Southeast portion of the property. Halfway through the trail you may connect with Camp Trail or continue until it ends on Simons Peak Road. An easy level trail perfect for an evening stroll, bike ride, or run.

Three Forks Trail — .4 Miles
This trail offers a pleasant walking path that winds in between the Pinon Neighborhood and Juniper Meadow home sites, offering lovely views of Talking Rock's high country landscape.

Lookout Point
Follow the Valley View trail to find Lookout Point, which provides an inspiring location to sit and admire stunning views of Talking Rock and the surrounding State Trust Land.
